

Autism Society of Pittsburgh Presents Training at Western Area Tech

In November 4, 2016, Jesse Torisky was invited to provide in-service training for teachers at the Western Area Career and Technology Center in Canonsburg, PA. Jesse conducted a three hour presentation, focusing on challenges in school settings that are unique to persons on the autism spectrum, as well as providing more effective communication methods. The presentation was well-received, with many question and answer follow-ups that displayed particular awareness on the part of the teachers as to the prevalence of autism in school settings.
